TAKE ME TO A BETTER LAND

Place your hand in my hand,
And I'll take you to a better land.
Where everyone can reunite,
And where I can see love not fight,
And therefore goodness in my sight.

Those men whose lives will soon be faded
Their precious land will be raided
Those families giving up their life,
For their young ones to survive,
Not a soul can freely thrive.

But when the brightness comes to dark,
The flame will spread and dearly spark.
It'll say. "Take me to a better land,
Just place your hand in my hand.
Whom shall ever share thee love,
It's waiting there up above."
